CHICAGO JAILS LIMA ASYLUM BREAK LEADER

Frank Haines, Insane Killer, Wounds Two Seriously In Resort Fight Before He Is Overpowered And Beaten

CHICAGO, May 27—A five-month crime rampage through the Midwest was brought to an end for Frank Haines, notorious bandit who lead a break from the Lima, Ohio, hospital for criminally insane last January, when he was overpowered after critically wounding two men in a west side tavern early today.

Haines had been sought across half-a-dozen states since he engineered the escape on New Year's Day, taking four other convicts with him. He started out with the determination to kill his divorced wife, Margaret, and four policemen, all of whom he blamed for putting him behind bars.

The others have since been captured. Mrs. Haines has been under a constant police guard since one of his captured confederates told of Haines' mad plan.

Haines early today was one of about 60 patrons in the resort just before closing time. Rebuffed when he spoke to a "26 game" girl in the place, witnesses said, he suddenly whipped out an automatic pistol and began firing.

Two Men Injured
Paul Gagne, 24, of Stafford Springs, Conn., fell with a bullet under his heart, and George Roach, Chicago, collapsed as he was struck in the neck by another shot.

One patron threw a bar stool at the gunman that knocked him off balance and the remainder swarmed over him before he could again pull the trigger. He was badly beaten before police arrived.

Taken to the jail hospital, he was said to be in a serious condition. A Social Security card in his pocket was issued to Cecil Campbell, 602 Jefferson St., Detroit, but fingerprints later established his true identity.

All Others Caught
With Haines when he escaped from the insane asylum was Russell Nuckles, 23, who was captured shortly in Cleveland and related the plot to slay Haines' wife, Margaret.

A few days later Haines, Brucks, 34, and William Blatz, 32, (Continued on Page Eight)

KING BECOMES HONORED CHIEF OF FIVE TRIBES

BANFF, Alberta, May 27—Chief Sitting Albino, head man of the five Indian tribes of Alberta, rested today at Banff where the snow-tipped Rockies touch the clouds.

The chief hasn't had much time to rest since he arrived at Quebec as George the Sixth more than a week ago and although Indians are noted for their stamina, one who has been an honorary Indian only a few hours can be forgiven for remembering that he was a tired white man before the adoption ceremony.

Whatever Sitting Albino might sound like to a white, it was intended as a compliment of compliments of the Blackfeet, the Stoneys, the Bloods, the Peigans and the Sarcees who conferred it on King George.

Translated it means "Great White Chief Sitting Over All Chiefs of the Tribes" and it was conferred at a ceremony more colorful in its own way than even the assent session of the Dominion parliament which has been tops until now in colorful ceremonies.

For his chief's bonnet, King George and his Queen visited the Indian encampment a mile west of Calgary where 30 teepees housed chiefs of all nearby reservations and their families.

APPEALING to governors of all the states to mobilize 130,000,000 in a campaign for peace through prayer, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Evanston, Ill., national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, asks that June 11 be set aside as the nation's "Peace Prayer Sunday."

TOLES IN DENIAL OF KNIFE DEATH

Suspect Remanded To County Jail Without Bond; John Ross Fined

Lloyd Alonzo Toles, 37, Circleville Negro better known as "Lonnie", denied a charge of murder, Saturday, in the death of Noble Crawford, 39, of Haynes. Toles appeared before Mayor W. B. Cady and was bound to the grand jury without bond.

The charge against Toles was filed by Louis Crawford, of Haynes, father of Noble. It alleges that Toles "unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice killed one, Noble Leo Crawford." The slaying occurred May 14. Toles is committed in the county jail.

Toles was released recently from the Lima State hospital for the criminally insane where he was sent after being accused of robbery.

Crawford's body was found on the evening of May 14 in a small pond in the Scioto river lowlands, within a few hours after it had been placed in the pond. Crawford had been stabbed 18 times, the blade of a small knife remaining in one of the wounds. He was dead before being placed in the pond.

George E. Gerhardt, prosecutor, said the grand jury would be called in the near future to consider the case.

John Ross, 43, of near Laurelville, held for investigation in the case, was assessed a fine of $100 and costs by Mayor W. B. Cady, Saturday, on an intoxication charge filed by Earl Weaver, deputy sheriff. He was committed to jail.

BERGDOLL SENT INTO SOLITARY BY HIS JAILERS

NEW YORK, May 27—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll today began serving 10 days of solitary confinement at Castle William, Governor's island, as the military intelligence service prepared to reopen investigation of his escape from army guards in 1919.

Bergdoll, No. 1 American World War draft dodger, returned Thursday after 19 years in Germany to "face the music."

Following his period in solitary, Bergdoll will be permitted to play basketball and take courses in radio manufacturing, barbering or tap dancing.

NAVY MEN BEGIN TASK OF RAISING 'SUB' FROM SEA

Air Hose Lines Fastened To Hulk Of Craft, Tomb Of 26 Crew Members

DIVERS WORK ALL NIGHT

Bodies May Stay In Squalus Until Pontoons Bring Vessel To Top

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 27—Compressed air hose lines were fastened today to the hulk of the sunken submarine Squalus, 243 feet below the surface of the Atlantic, preparatory to raising the steel tomb of 26 members of her crew, drowned in the flooded aft compartment.

Tons of water will be blown from the flooded sections to lighten the 300-foot craft, which sank Tuesday during a speed dive.

Navy divers worked all night under giant searchlights preparing to raise the $5,000,000 craft from its bed of mud, twelve miles off Portsmouth.

First decks were cleared of the radio antenna, guard rails and other fittings which might impede salvage work. Permanent steel lines were attached from the salvage ship Falcon to the submerged craft.

Under the water also were attached heavy chains to which will be made fast eight huge pontoons, each capable of lifting 50 tons. The pontoons will be flooded and sunk alongside the Squalus, made fast, and the water forced out to give buoyancy.

Bodies May Remain
Whether the bodies of the 26 men would be removed before the Squalus is brought to the surface remained undecided.

Meanwhile, authorities closely questioned the 33 survivors, brought safely to the surface in the new diving bell, robot hero of the tragedy, and Portsmouth navy yard workers in an effort to ascertain the cause of the tragedy.

"Anything said about the induction valve is mere conjecture," according to Capt. H. R. Greenlee, manager of the Portsmouth navy yard. Failure of a 31-inch injection valve to close had been unofficially given as the cause of flooding the aft compartments.

All the survivors, except three, were in perfect condition despite their harrowing experience of being locked below the sea for 30 hours. The trio, Charles S. Luney, (Continued on Page Eight)

Toles, then serving time, was credited with spreading the alarm that resulted in a search starting for the fugitives. Toles, Lima officials said, knew of the escape plot but did not participate in it.

It was a short time after the escape that Lima officials informed Pickaway county authorities that they believed Toles to be cured of his insanity and should be released. He was brought to Circleville by an institution official.

U. OF MICHIGAN YOUTH'S DEATH MOTIVE DOUBTED

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 27—Despondency over low grades today was discounted as a reason for the suicide yesterday of University of Michigan Student William C. Devereaux, 22-year-old Detroit, by his young bride as arrangements were made for his funeral.

Mrs. Devereaux, the former Marjorie Wilson, granddaughter of Nash Motor Car company founder C. W. Nash, of Kenosha, Wis., whom Devereaux eloped with last February, denied he killed himself over poor marks at the university, saying:

"His grades were average. He left no note, and we are at a loss for a reason. It is one of those things which does not seem to have an answer."

The young husband was found hanging from a rafter in the garage at the rear of the apartment in which he and Marjorie lived.

Robert A. Straub, fellow student and fraternity brother of Devereaux, who with Mrs. Devereaux found the body, described the dead youth as "somewhat of an introvert," who often worried considerably over what were apparently unimportant matters.

"He took himself too seriously," Straub said.

Dr. Edwin C. Ganzhorn, Washtenaw county coroner, pronounced Devereaux' death a suicide.

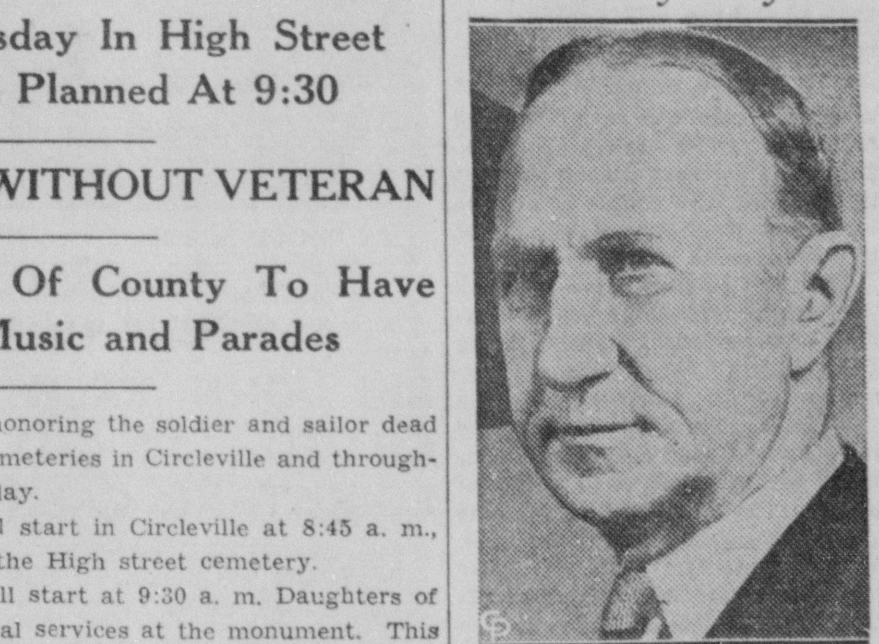

YANKEE CLIPPER AT BERMUDA IN MAIDEN FLIGHT

NEW YORK, May 27—The trans-Atlantic flying boat Yankee Clipper, heading for the United States on its return mail-carrying flight from Europe, alighted at Hamilton, Bermuda, at 6:33 a. m. today.

The giant flying craft headed for Bermuda after taking off from Horta, the Azores, when it ran into heavy winds along the aerial route to Port Washington, N. Y., its home base.

Originally the giant plane had been scheduled to fly directly from the Azores to Port Washington, but weather disturbances along the Great Circle route caused the change in plans.

11-GAME STREAK REACHED IN 7-5 CARDINAL JOUST

Bucky Walters On Mound As Ohioans Break St. Louis Run At Seven Frays

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, May 27 — Those of us who picked the Cincinnati Reds to win the National League pennant have prattled at some length about their fine pitching, generally adequate fielding and lusty hitting, but it develops now that they have still another prerequisite to greatness. In fact, the Reds have something without which no club can progress very far, the same being courage. They may be next season — with the addition of a couple of players — develop into one of the best teams to come along in years.

They are in first place today in the league standings after winning 11 straight games, the streak having been continued yesterday at St. Louis against the Cardinals. To keep it up the Reds had to snap a Cardinal winning string that had reached seven. The Reds did it in the Cards' own grounds by 7 to 5 and, at the same time, squared their encounters for the season with the Cards at three-all.

Bucky Walters Wins

The Cards, by virtue of their spurt, had been in first place fighting off the Reds' challenge with vigor and success until yesterday, when the thing finally became a hand-to-hand battle between the two contenders in the first game of the current four-game series. Once they came to grips, the Reds poured it on, making 11 hits off five pitchers and winning behind Bucky Walters.

In the only other National League game, the Pittsburgh Pirates blasted the Chicago Cubs, 14 to 5, with a 17 hit attack leveled against four hurlers.

The New York Yankees continued to set the pace in the American League in a real pitchers' duel and a heart-breaker for Henry Phippen, who held the champions to four hits only to go down with the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0. Phippen's only mistake was a ball he grooved for Tommy Henrich in the sixth with the count three and two. Henrich promptly slapped out a home run for the only score of the game. Oral Hildebrand, who toiled on the hill for the Yanks, allowed six hits and walked seven.

The Boston Red Sox remained in second place, 5½ games behind the fast-traveling Yanks, by beating the Washington Senators, 4 to 2.

In the remaining American league contest, the Chicago White Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 1.

BIG JOHN FACES RED BIRDS AND GILDED KNIGHT FOR STAKE CASH IN VITAL GAMES

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., May 27.—Johnstown and Gilded Knight, two of the mighty Trojans of the three-year-old division, will display their superlative running powers this afternoon at Belmont Park when they battle it out for a mile in the Withers stake.

Johnstown will be fighting out there to regain the prestige he lost in the running of the Preakness. Gilded Knight will stretch his steel-muscle legs in an endeavor to overthrow the powerful son of Jamestown.

This will be a peculiar event. Johnstown and Gilded Knight are practically in the same barn, both being under the care of "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, the "perfect trainer." Johnstown wears the livery of the Belair Stud while Gilded Knight strides forth with the yellow and purple-sleeved jacket of the Wheatley stable. Naturally, they will be coupled in the betting, according to the rules of racing. This entry appears so formidable that to layzys will quote around 1 to 5. There are six other high class equines in this historic race but they cannot really be termed dangerous factors.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, May 27
AN EVENTFUL day, with probably high-pressure or dramatic experiences, is the presage based on the lunar and mutual configurations. Matters of unusual importance loom on the horizon with thrilling prospects. Bold and important projects, requiring initiative and strenuous methods, are likely to step up affairs with a degree of surprise and audacity. The forces and faculties are under most exciting stimuli for conspicuous achievement.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of dramatic experience. All the physical forces, intellectual and emotional energies seem involved in a sensational achievement in an out-of-the-ordinary enterprise. An invention, a brave exploit, a dramatic or literary "best seller" may materialize under such planetary auspices.

A child born on this day may have outstanding talents and qualities which should insure it conspicuous achievement in science, invention or travel, or in dramatic or literary fields. It should have a life of exciting adventure and romance, probably in strange places.

For Sunday, May 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope is particularly auspicious for all pertaining to religion, charity, ecclesiastics—the church and state generally. There may be some very successful celebrations in connection with these interests. It is a promising time for all manner of social, romantic and educational functions. There might be a rather extravagant or costly gesture of friendship.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised if a marked honor, or token of preferment or friendliness, comes from high places. The year will be notable for promotion, expansion and achievement, with enhanced personal and social prestige.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and of pronounced humanitarian sympathies, which may place it high in the ministry, or in an educational or judicial position. Its affectionate nature assures it many friends.

BOB OWENS AND JOE DAVIS RUN IN OHIO FINALS

Tiger Star In 220 And New Holland Ace In 100 And Low Hurdles

Robert Owens, wearing the colors of Circleville high school, and Joe Davis, representing New Holland, qualified Friday to compete in final events of the state high school track meet being conducted Saturday afternoon on the Ohio State university grounds.

Owens will compete in the 220 yard dash. He failed to qualify in the 440, his pet event, when he was caught in a box and was unable to get among the leaders.

Davis will appear in two events, the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles. Persons who saw the meet preliminaries Friday believe that the protégé of Coach Don Rittenour has a good chance to finish ahead of the field in at least one of the two events.

Davis is unbeaten in the 100 and 220 hurdles this year. Owen has not yet been beaten in the 220 sprint.

A heavy rain shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday forced postponement of baseball semi-finals and tennis matches, the latter being well underway at the time of the deluge.

Although from four to five inches of water flooded the stadium track, a crew of workmen succeed in draining the excess water and qualify events finally got underway. Cleveland East Tech leading the way in the Class A events and Upper Arlington qualifying the most men in the Class B events.

Postponed tennis matches were slated for 9 a. m. this morning, with the finals going on this afternoon as scheduled.

Baseball semifinals were also to get started at 9 a. m. with Canton McKinley opposing Akron Garfield and Middletown in Class A tilts. Class B semi-finals were Pemberville vs. North Bend and Lockbourne-Hamilton township vs. Hanging Rock. Finals were to be run off at 2:30 p. m.

GLOYD BOY, 13, TO COMPETE IN 'MIBS' TOURNEY

Reed Gloyd, 13, of Ashville, Pickaway county's marble champion, went to Columbus, Saturday, to take part in the state contest. Gloyd won the county championship at a tournament sponsored recently by Frank Lynch, of the Coca Cola Bottling Co., and conducted by the W. P. A. recreation project.

The winner of the state contest will attend the national tournament in Wildwood, N. J., the week of June 25 to July 2.

BOSTON, May 27—Lou Ambers, former lightweight boxing champion, today stood out as an increasingly formidable threat to champ Henry Armstrong as a result of the Herkimer, N. Y., Hurricane's slashing eight round technical knockout of Paul Junior of Lewiston, Me.

AFTER 14 years at Mansfield, Ohio, high school, where he compiled a remarkable football and basketball coaching record, J. Russell Murphy, above, now goes to Cornell university to assist Carl Snively. Murphy's teams at Mansfield have won 99 games while losing 23. During the period 1930 and 1935, his teams went through 39 games in a row without suffering defeat.

ROBERTS READY TO DEFEND HIS RACING HONORS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27.—Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Cal., winner in 1938, today joined 22 other qualifiers in his bid for a second straight victory in the 500-mile automobile race on Memorial Day.

Driving the same car he used last year, but with a new four-cylinder motor Roberts toured the ten mile test run in 126.998 miles per hour.

Another qualifier of the day is Bob Swanson of Los Angeles. His highly streamlined car is powered by the only 16-cylinder engine in the race. It has been stored for eleven years in an Indianapolis garage since Frank Lockhart rode behind it to his death on the sands of Daytona Beach.

Swanson averaged 129.31 miles per hour with a fuel mixture of gasoline and alcohol. A supercharger, which is now permitted after being barred in the race a number of seasons, gave the mount its needed pep to overcome the low displacement of 183 cubic inches.

Mechanics and drivers sweated in a frenzy today to get their cars placed in the starting line before the qualifying deadline tomorrow night at 7. The 33 cars making the fastest time out of the 49 originally entered are all that will get into the race.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago tavern owner who led the field for 375 miles last year before being forced out with mechanical trouble, has the post position. Beside him will be Louis Meyer of Huntington, Calif. who won in 1928, 1933 and 1936, and Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, the 1937 winner.

A crowd of at least 65,000 was expected to witness the trials today with a near-record crowd of 140,000 predicted for Tuesday's race.

FEEDS ON TOP IN 9 TO 2 TILT

Contractors Fail To Gain After Eshelman Team Scores In First

Eshelman Feeds scored four runs in the first inning of their game Friday evening with the Lewis & Frisinger Contractors, and they proved sufficient for victory, but the Feed crew went on to pile up a 9-2 margin in a City League game.

The contractor outfit was blanked until the sixth frame when both runs were registered. Purcell and Buskirk divided hill duties for the winners.

Kimmel tossed for the losers. Wink Wellington's single, double and triple featured the Eshelman attack.

JOHN WOODRUFF, SOUTHERN CAL. STAR ON TRACK

NEW YORK, May 27—It is Long John Woodruff, the Olympic champion, against the University of California in the battle for the big black type today.

Intent on completing his Pittsburgh running career unbeaten outdoors, the invincible Negro stands almost alone as a challenge to the Trojans' pre-eminence. There was no miracle in the qualifying rounds of the intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field championships, so Southern California, with two records packed away and every one of its men successfully past the first day's trials, now goes about completing the defense of its team title begun gloriously yesterday at Taborough stadium on Randall's island.

After qualifying under wraps for the 440-yard final in 48.4 seconds and for the 880 in 1:57, Woodruff indicated that his triple—including the anchor leg on the mile relay—will be his farewell to Pitt.

REAM IS ASSISTANT COLUMBUS, May 27—Charles D. Ream, former tackle on the Ohio State University and Cleveland Rams football teams, has been named assistant coach at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., it was learned today.

The Cards, by virtue of their spirit, had been in first place fighting off the Reds' challenge with vigor and success until yesterday, when the thing finally became a hand-to-hand battle between the two contenders in the first game of the current four-game series. Once they came to grips, the Reds poured it on, making 11 hits off five pitchers and winning behind Bucky Walters.
In the only other National League game, the Pittsburgh Pirates blasted the Chicago Cubs, 14 to 5, with a 17 hit attack leveled against four hurlers.
The New York Yankees continued to set the pace in the American League in a real pitchers' duel and a heart-breaker for Henry Pippin, who held the champions to four hits only to go down with the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0. Pippin's only mistake was a ball he grooved for Tommy Henrich in the sixth with the count three and two. Henrich promptly slapped out a home run for the only score of the game. Oral Hildebrand, who tolled on the hill for the Yanks, allowed six hits and walked seven.
The Boston Red Sox remained in second place, 5½ games behind the fast-traveling Yanks, by beating the Washington Senators, 4 to 2.
In the remaining American league contest, the Chicago White Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 1.

DIMAG ALMOST READY

NEW YORK, May 27—Joe DiMaggio, brilliant Yankee outfielder, who has been on the shelf since he tore his leg muscles April 29 in a game against Washington, today, was about ready to return to the lineup and may possibly get in tomorrow when the Yanks play their last home game until June 14.

Something's Brewing Here!

HE COULD be making beer, or maybe soup, but Charley Ruffing, Yankee pitcher, is doing neither. He's giving his ailing arm a gentle massage in a tub in which a whirling gadget does the trick. The spoon effect is for the benefit of the photographer.

BIG JOHN FACES GILDED KNIGHT FOR STAKE CASH IN VITAL GAMES

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., May 27—Johnstown and Gilded Knight, two of the mighty Trojans of the three-year-old division, will display their superlative running powers this afternoon at Belmont Park when they battle it out for a mile in the Withers stake.
Johnstown will be fighting out there to regain the prestige he lost in the running of the Preakness. Gilded Knight will stretch his steel-muscle legs in an endeavor to overthrow the powerful son of Jamestown.
This will be a peculiar event. Johnstown and Gilded Knight are practically in the same barn, both being under the care of "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, the perfect trainer. Johnstown wears the livery of the Belair Stud while Gilded Knight strides forth with the yellow and purple-sleeved jacket of the Wheatley stable. Naturally, they will be coupled in the betting, according to the rules of racing. This entry appears so formidable that the layers will quote around 1 to 5.
There are six other high class equines in this historic race but they cannot really be termed dangerous factors.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, May 27
AN EVENTFUL day, with probably high-pressure or dramatic experiences, is the presage based on the lunar and mutual configurations. Matters of unusual importance loom on the horizon with thrilling prospects. Bold and important projects, requiring initiative and strenuous methods, are likely to step up affairs with a degree of surprise and audacity. The forces and faculties are under most exciting stimuli for conspicuous achievement.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of dramatic experience. All the physical forces, intellectual and emotional energies seem involved in a sensational achievement in an out-of-the-ordinary enterprise. An invention, a brave exploit, a dramatic or literary "best seller" many materialize under such planetary auspices.
A child born on this day may have outstanding talents and qualities which should insure it conspicuous achievement in science, invention or travel, or in dramatic or literary fields. It should have a life of exciting adventure and romance, probably in strange places.

For Sunday, May 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope is particularly auspicious for all pertaining to religion, charity, ecclesiastics—the church and state generally. There may be some very successful celebrations in connection with these interests. It is a promising time for all manner of social, romantic and educational funtings. There might be a rather extravagant or costly gesture of friendship.
Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised if a marked honor, or token of preference or friendliness, comes from high places. The year will be notable for promotion, expansion and achievement, with enhanced personal and social prestige.
A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and of pronounced humanitarian sympathies, which may place it high in the ministry, or in an educational or judicial position. Its affectionate nature assures it many friends.

BOB OWENS AND JOE DAVIS RUN IN OHIO FINALS

Tiger Star In 220 And New Holland Ace In 100 And Low Hurdles

Robert Owens, wearing the colors of Circleville high school, and Joe Davis, representing New Holland, qualified Friday to compete in final events of the state high school track meet being conducted Saturday afternoon on the Ohio State university grounds.
Owens will compete in the 220 yard dash. He failed to qualify in the 440, his pet event, when he was caught in a box and was unable to get among the leaders.
Davis will appear in two events, the 100 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles. Persons who saw the meet preliminaries Friday believe that the protégé of Coach Don Rittenour has a good chance to finish ahead of the field in at least one of the two events.
Davis is unbeaten in the 100 and 220 hurdles this year. Owen has not yet been beaten in the 220 sprint.

A heavy rain shortly after 2 P. M. yesterday forced postponement of baseball semi-finals and tennis matches, the latter being well underway at the time of the deluge.

Although from four to five inches of water flooded the stadium track, a crew of workmen succeeded in draining the excess water and quality events finally got underway. Cleveland East Tech leading the way in the Class A events and Upper Arlington qualifying the most men in the Class B events.

Postponed tennis matches were slated for 9 a. m. this morning, with the finals going on this afternoon as scheduled.

Baseball semifinals were also to get started at 9 a. m. with Canton McKinley opposing Akron Garfield and Columbus West tangling with Middletown in Class A tilts.
Class B semi-finals were Pemberville vs. North Bend and Lockbourne-Hamilton township vs. Hanging Rock. Finals were to be run off at 2:30 p. m.

GLOYD BOY, 13, TO COMPETE IN 'MIBS' TOURNNEY

Reed Gloyd, 13, of Ashville, Pickaway county's marble champion, went to Columbus, Saturday, to take part in the state contest. Gloyd won the county championship at a tournament sponsored recently by Frank Lynch, of the Coca Cola Bottling Co., and conducted by the W. P. A. recreation project.
The winner of the state contest will attend the national tournament in Wildwood, N. J., the week of June 25 to July 2.

LOU AMBERS ON TOP

ROBERTS READY TO DEFEND HIS RACING HONORS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27—Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Cal., winner in 1938, today joined 22 other qualifiers in his bid for a second straight victory in the 500-mile automobile race on Memorial Day.

Driving the same car he used last year, but with a new four-cylinder motor Roberts toured the ten mile test run in 126.998 miles per hour.

Another qualifier of the day is Bob Swanson of Los Angeles. His highly streamlined car is powered by the only 16-cylinder engine in the race. It has been stored for eleven years in an Indianapolis garage since Frank Lockhart rode behind it to his death on the sands of Daytona Beach.

Swanson averaged 129.31 miles per hour with a fuel mixture of gasoline and alcohol. A supercharger, which is now permitted after being barred in the race a number of seasons, gave the mount its needed pep to overcome the low displacement of 183 cubic inches.

Mechanics and drivers sweated in a frenzy today to get their cars placed in the starting line before the qualifying deadline tomorrow night at 7. The 33 cars making the fastest time out of the 49 originally entered are all that will get into the race.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago tavern owner who led the field for 375 miles last year before being forced out with mechanical trouble, has the post position. Beside him will be Louis Meyer of Huntington, Calif., who won in 1928, 1933 and 1936, and Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, the 1937 winner.

A crowd of at least 65,000 was expected to witness the trials today with a near-record crowd of 140,000 predicted for Tuesday's race.

Contractors Fail To Gain After Eshelman Team Scores In First

Eshelman Feeds scored four runs in the first inning of their game Friday evening with the Lewis & Frisinger Contractors, and they proved sufficient for victory, but the Feed crew went on to pile up a 9-2 margin in a City League game.

The contractor outfit was blanked until the sixth frame when both runs were registered. Purcell and Buskirk divided hill duties for the winners.

Kimmel tossed for the losers. Wink Wellington's single, double and triple featured the Eshelman attack.

JOHN WOODRUFF, SOUTHERN CAL. STAR ON TRACK

NEW YORK, May 27—It is Long John Woodruff, the Olympic champion, against the University of California in the battle for the big black type today.

Intent on completing his Pittsburgh running career unbeaten outdoors, the invincible Negro stands almost alone as a challenge to the 'Trojans' pre-eminence. There was no miracle in the qualifying rounds of the intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field championships, so Southern California, with two records packed away and every one of its men successfully past the first day's trials, now goes about completing the defense of its team title begun gloriously yesterday at Triborough stadium on Randall's Island.

After qualifying under wraps for the 440-yard final in 48.4 seconds and for the 880 in 1:57, Woodruff indicated that his triple—including the anchor leg on the mile relay—will be his farewell to Pitt.

Paul Thinks in World Terms

"Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of Christ," is Paul's way of describing himself as he preaches to Jew and Gentile.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Romans 1:1-17; 3:21-30; 5:1-11; 10:1-15.

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," Paul tells those to whom he preaches of the Christ who was crucified and is now risen from the dead.

"Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ by whom we have access by faith—and rejoice in hope in the glory of God."

"Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest—for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest for your soul." (GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 1:16.)

British Subject Chosen By Presbyterian Church

CLEVELAND, May 27—Dr. Sam Higginbottom, a British subject and a layman, today was the new moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America.

Dr. Higginbottom, president of Allahbad college in India, was elected at the opening session of the 151st general assembly of the church in Cleveland.

Elected by a vote of 496 to 194 for Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First church of Washington, and 184 for Dr. James A. Kelso, president of Western Theological seminary, Pittsburgh. Dr. Higginbottom was made the unanimous choice of the assembly at the suggestion of Rev. McCartney.

Dr. Higginbottom came to the United States from Manchester, England, where he was born in 1874, when he was 20 years of age. He was educated at Amherst and Princeton and went to India in 1903. He returned to this country in 1911 to get a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State, so that he could apply modern agricultural methods to Indian soil. He is a friend of Gandhi.

The assembly today plunged into the question of financial security of ministers and lay employees. The question is of particular importance because church employees are not governed by the federal social security act.

W. Hall Harris of Baltimore, retiring moderator of the permanent judicial commission, reported that for the first time in the history of the church commission had no controversies before it at the time of the general assembly.

As one of the commission members named in 1933 for a six-year term, Harris ended his term of office.

His suggestion that Vice Moderator Dr. Floyd Poe of the Texas synod replace him was accepted unanimously by the assembly.

Speaking at a young people's popular meeting, Dr. William Lloyd Imes of New York said that the choice today for youth was between "Christ's way and Caesar's."

"I am not referring to the little petty tin horn dictators in certain areas in Europe. . . we make them entirely too important," Dr. Imes said. "The real demon . . . is that spirit of the world's mocking scorn of a gospel which loves and serves."

Originally the Mt. Vernon home of George Washington contained only eight rooms and an attic. When George married Martha Custis he enlarged it to 19 rooms.

"Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest—for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest for your soul." (GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 1:16.)

TEAM WORK

AMERICA became a "land of opportunity" not only because the resources were here, but because Americans worked together in finding and developing them.

Oh, yes, there were plenty of squabbles and misunderstandings and rivalries, political and economic. But we didn't have powerful groups of citizens stalling progress by working relentlessly against each other.

"We can never get full recovery," says Henry A. Wallace, "unless all of us—including the leaders of industry, the leaders of labor, the leaders of agriculture and the leaders of government—are willing to put our shoulders to the wheel."

Every intelligent citizen should know that this is true. And every good citizen, in office or in private life, should do his best to put disappointment, prejudice and grievance behind him, and live up to the ideal of old-fashioned American cooperation.

We would do it in a war. Well, this is a war—a peaceful war to preserve the American system, American ideals and American opportunities.

GARDEN PARTY TROUBLES

LADY RONALD LINDSAY, wife of the British Ambassador to the United States, has her own definition of the "average American." Each average American, in her view, represents some group, such as labor, clergy, press, business and the like. Even a social register may be an average American, representing the social register.

It is on some such basis that she has handled the extremely difficult, not to say painful, task of issuing invitations to the embassy garden party in honor of the King and Queen of Canada (also England, Australia, and so on). Lady Lindsay's selections may not meet the approval of anybody except the lucky holders of the invitations, but an honest critic would admit that no guest list could have been completely satisfactory under the circumstances. She couldn't have asked the whole 130,000,000 of us, most of whom don't really long to attend, anyhow. She couldn't even have asked all the thousands who actually wish they could be there.

It might as well be recognized, too, that not all the persons wanting to be present are moved wholly by good-will. Many would go for curiosity, for excitement, for supposed social prestige. If Lady Lindsay had started picking and choosing on the motive basis, she might have compiled a better list, but the outcries and heart-burnings would have been worse than at present.

"SHOULDN'T BE ASKED"

WASHINGTON—A White House caller who must be nameless recently summoned his nerve sufficiently to put point-blank to Roosevelt the biggest political question asked by the country—the third term. The way he phrased it was that, according to the way events were shaping up, Roosevelt would have no alternative but to run again.

But the President demurred. "After eight years of carrying this load," he said, "I'm entitled to a rest. I don't think I should be asked to do more."

This, Roosevelt's friends believe, was a sincere answer. Left to himself, the President will not run again.

Yet the visitor who queried him departed from the White House with the feeling that the door was not quite shut. As he pointed out to associates later, Roosevelt said that he "should not be asked to do more." Which is a lot different from saying "I will not do more."

It is this leaving of the door slightly ajar that has helped renew both the speculation that he would run, and the drive among his friends to jockey him into running.

Today third term speculation, both pro and con, has hit the high peak of the past six years. Behind most of this is the determination of the inner circle that Roosevelt must run; and behind this, in turn, are two deep-rooted beliefs:

1. That Roosevelt is the only Democrat who can win.

2. That unless he does win, the New Deal is finished.

On the second point, it is significant that all Democratic candidates are in agreement with the inner circle, even Jim Farley. Although campaigning on a staunch Roosevelt platform, Farley does not deny that much of what Roosevelt stood for will crumble when he retires.

TEDDY'S MISTAKE

More than three years ago, the President told close friends that he had no intention of settling the third term question until the eve of the nominating convention. He explained that he had always remembered what happened to his cousin, Teddy Roosevelt, after he renounced a third term.

Republican Party leaders, F. D. Roosevelt recalled, ceased to consider Teddy a factor to be reckoned with, and he lost control of his party. FDR said that he intended to keep Congress guessing, that he would not make the same mistake.

As part of the same strategy of silence, Roosevelt also knows that the more uncertainty there is about his future, the more difficult it is for Garner, Farley and Hull. They are left dangling on a limb. Though still busy scrambling for convention delegates, these gentlemen are up against the

"Exposition Feet" Due to Excesses

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
MY friend, Dr. Philip S. Hench, of the Mayo Clinic, warns that this year will probably see an epidemic of gout.

The reason for this melancholy outlook is the fact that at each end of our great country we have a fair—the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco.

And fairs, according to Dr. Hench, cause dietary indiscretions, excessive walking and standing on the feet, and excessive drinking, and all this predisposes to gout.

Dr. Hench even has some historical support for his prediction, as witness the gout wave that accompanied the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago during 1933 and 1934.

"Exposition Feet"

"Exposition feet" will be the name given to the condition in popular parlance, but it will really be acute gouty arthritis.

Gout is supposed to be a rare and even disappearing disease, but when once you are on the lookout for it, you find a good many cases. When

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I first started to be on the lookout for it, the first case I saw was in my own person. I tried to persuade Dr. Hench that "I had no arthritis," but he said, "No, doctor, you've got the gout."

It should be easy to recognize by the abrupt onset, usually in the base of the big toe, an acute four or five-day course of swelling, pain and disability, and then as abrupt a disappearance. Two days after the decline of an attack of gout, the victim can walk, run, walk or jump fences as well as he ever could. Hippocrates long ago quoted the case of an athlete who, a week after a bout with the gout, won a race in the Olympic games.

Fishing Trip, Too

Besides exposition seeing, a fishing trip is a potent provocative of the gout. Dr. Hench has a very interesting lecture on gout, and during it he shows a lantern slide which exhibits a fishing rod, a bottle of whiskey and a shoe with a hole cut over the big toe. It is mute but eloquent testimony to the fact that an elderly gentleman who goes on a fishing trip and walks around too much on uneven rocks and pebbles and indulges in a few little snorts at eventide, just to lessen the fatigue, is likely to come home with an attack of the ancient enemy.

"Thousands of Americans are suffering with gout today, only most of them don't know what they have," says Dr. Hench. "The modern generation of medical men was taught to believe that gout practically disappeared after the war. As a result, the statistics of several large clinics indicate that most gouty patients have to suffer their disease five to fifteen years before it is properly diagnosed."

The lesson is that if you are over 40 years of age, go easy at the fairs on the eats, the drinks and the walks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. B.: "Please describe something about a fresh tomato. I have a friend who was under observation in a hospital. The doctor told her it was her liver and said to go home and eat a fresh tomato every day without fail. Is that good for everybody? I have another friend and she is eating one every day because this other friend is eating one."

Answer—A fresh tomato is a delicious and healthy dish. It contains as much or more vitamin C than a lemon, and the skin of a tomato is one of the best cathartics on earth. A fresh tomato a day will not hurt anybody—it is a kind of variation of "an apple a day keeps the doctor away"—but the idea that what the doctor prescribes for one person is good for another is about as sensible as supposing that because a doctor has prescribed crutches for a man with a broken leg everybody in the neighborhood should take to crutches.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendingen has sent pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. REBID ON YOUR LENGTH

SOME DAY the leading bridge books will give bidding advice which more closely approximates the tactics actually used by the authors at the competitive table. Some of the most prominent teachers still feel that the average person will get in trouble if the methods of the big winners are taught to him, but others think it is always a mistake to teach one thing when you know another is sounder. This applies especially to the rebidding of a major suit, which depends not at all upon how much honor strength is in that suit but only upon the number of cards you hold in it.

Proper rebidding tactics won this deal for one side of a team match. At the first table South bid 1-Heart, North 2-Clubs, South 2-Diamonds, North 2-No trump and South 3-No trump. Though East made the unfortunate lead of the spade J, costing one trick, his side held the hand to exactly 3-No trump, getting three tricks in spades and the club A.

At the other table, after the 1-Heart by South, 2-Clubs by North, 2-Diamonds by South and 2-No trump by North, South saw fit to rebid his five-card suit at 3-Hearts. North, a sound partner, who would not make a three-card raise of what might be a four-card suit headed by the Q or J-10, now knew his partner had five hearts. So he raised to 4-Hearts.

There was no earthly way to beat this contract, at which only one trick each was lost in clubs, diamonds and spades, thus producing a score which defeated the 3-No trump by 20 points. In addition, the trump game would have been beaten if East had not led the spade J and West put his Q on it.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

WHEN JESSICA fled from the breakfast room, Eleanor buttered her toast slowly. She did not eat it. Her eyes, fixed on the garden scene where humming birds whirled above the blues and lavenders, clustered in a patch of golden sunlight, were darkening.

She hadn't thought much of Jessica's love Kate that Dennis was madly in love with her; she had been more concerned with her having said it than what was back of it.

Dennis had never told her that he loved her. They did not talk of love. It was enough for them to be together and to talk of every other thing in the world. Jessica had said: "Don't pretend, Mother!"

She was not pretending. Or was she? Had she not known and cherished the thought that their friendship had meant as much to Dennis as it did to her? Had she not evaded calling it anything but friendship? And did not she, so wise in the ways of emotions, know that no friendship of this kind was possible between a married woman and a man other than her husband?

"Resolve this," her mind spoke. But she could not. Dennis would be going away soon. Any day now. She had begun to tell herself for many days past that when he went she would miss him as she missed a friend. That was true.

She told it all to herself again. She said it aloud:

"Dennis is going away soon. It was nice to have known him. I must put him in a book some day." There, she had said it. It was easy to say.

Annie stood at her elbow. "Did you call, Mrs. Parrish?" Eleanor came back from a long way. "What? . . . Oh, no, Annie, I didn't call."

Annie went out and Eleanor pushed her plate away from her, and put her elbows on the table, her hands supporting her temples.

What had it been that Jessica had wanted to tell her? She remembered now the change in Jessica's voice when she had said: "Mother—There had been something desperate in it."

Eleanor got up from the table and went into the garden.

Phil was weeding the beet patch. She said: "Why don't you have the gardener do that, Phil? And what do we want beets for anyway?"

He answered: "Come on down, Nell, and help me. There's nothing like weeding beets to get the weeds out of your mind."

"I want to talk to you, Phil." She sat down on the grass at the edge of the patch.

"Fire away."

She put a blade of grass into her mouth and began to weed without being conscious of it.

"What's on your mind?"

She didn't quite know how to start. She couldn't very well tell him about the scene in the breakfast room without telling him more than she wanted to.

He said: "Hey, there, don't pull up the beets. I guess you'd better give it up. You were born to be a lily, Nell. You'd better stick to being handsomely arrayed. Some of the roses are ready for cutting."

She was glad of the excuse to get away. She must think of what she had to say to him. He knew her so well that she was afraid he would read her mind. She said: "All right, I'll cut the roses."

"What did you want to talk about?"

"Nothing important," she said.

"Why don't you have the gardener do that, Phil?"

brushing some soil from her plique skirt. "We can talk about it later when I don't have to share your attention with the beets."

"Better put a hat on, honey. The sun's hot this morning," he called after her.

"If only he wouldn't be so solicitous," she said to herself. "And so humble," she added.

Dennis made her feel that he was exalted, and that he took her up to a place beside him. That was one of the things that she loved about him. When she was with him, she felt exalted, as if he were on a mountain peak.

She had never felt that way with Phil, even in the early days. It was always she who led, and women did not like to lead. It had been increasingly difficult with Phil during these last years when she was nearing the highest pinnacle of success. There was a quality of gratefulness about Phil, a hesitancy and humbleness in his manner that irritated her.

She broke off her thoughts angrily. She was being unfair to herself to think that way. Her thoughts inferred that she had made him as he was.

The day stretched long, empty and irksome to her. She was not in a mood for work; Dennis was in New York for the day and she could not work when she was mentally unsettled.

Jessica had gone when she returned to the house, but her presence, her words and something strange in her manner remained in her mother's memory.

Once more she sought out Phil. "Phil, what's the matter with Jessica? Do you think she is working too hard?"

He said calmly: "Jessica is in love. Very much in love, I am afraid. Isn't she talked to you about it?"

"No . . . not exactly. Do you mean with that Charles . . . Charles whatever his name is?"

"His name is Charles Kendall, Nell. I think you ought to know about it. He is no boy to sit with in the moonlight and forget. If you'd noticed what's been going on all summer, you would have seen that he is almost always with Jessica. I don't like it, but I've felt it was your place to straighten out the matter."

"Why don't you like it, Phil? Is there anything the matter with him?"

"Only that he is nearly twice Jessica's age, that he has been previously married and seen much more of the world than a seventeen-year-old girl could."

"Oh! Maybe we'd better do something about it. Insist on Jessica's leaving the theater at once. Send her off some place."

"I wouldn't recommend that approach, Nell. Jessica is too high-spirited. She's very much like you. She has a mind of her own."

"Well, suggest something."

"I suggest that we dine en famille tonight—just the three of us, and talk it over. You'll find that she will be honest with us. That's the best way. You don't have an engagement, do you?"

"No . . . I'll tell you."

Eleanor thought that Phil's suggestion was right, and she meant to follow it, but Dennis Pryor rang her up from New York around five o'clock and said: "Eleanor, will you come in town and meet me for dinner?"

She said: "I can't, Dennis. I'm playing the heavy mother role tonight."

"Could you play it another night? I've had a cable from my company. I'm returning to Brazil in a few days. I must talk to you tonight. And I would prefer to talk to you in New York."

Dennis was returning to Brazil "in a few days!"

She said: "I'll come in, Dennis. Will you meet my train? I'll arrive at seven-six."

She wrote a hasty little note for Phil to find when he got home from his golf.

TEAM WORK

AMERICA became a "land of opportunity" not only because the resources were here, but because Americans worked together in finding and developing them.

Oh, yes, there were plenty of squabbles and misunderstandings and rivalries, political and economic. But we didn't have powerful groups of citizens stalling progress by working relentlessly against each other.

"We can never get full recovery," says Henry A. Wallace, "unless all of us—including the leaders of industry, the leaders of labor, the leaders of agriculture and the leaders of government—are willing to put our shoulders to the wheel."

Every intelligent citizen should know that this is true. And every good citizen, in office or in private life, should do his best to put disappointment, prejudice and grievance behind him, and live up to the ideal of old-fashioned American cooperation.

We would do it in a war. Well, this is a war—a peaceful war to preserve the American system, American ideals and American opportunities.

GARDEN PARTY TROUBLES

LADY RONALD LINDSAY, wife of the British Ambassador to the United States, has her own definition of the "average American." Each average American, in her view, represents some group, such as labor, clergy, press, business and the like. Even a social register may be an average American, representing the social register.

It is on some such basis that she has handled the extremely difficult, not to say painful, task of issuing invitations to the embassy garden party in honor of the King and Queen of Canada (also England, Australia, and so on). Lady Lindsay's selections may not meet the approval of anybody except the lucky holders of the invitations, but an honest critic would admit that no guest list could have been completely satisfactory under the circumstances. She couldn't have asked the whole 130,000,000 of us, most of whom don't really long to attend, anyhow. She couldn't even have asked all the thousands who actually wish they could be there.

It might as well be recognized, too, that not all the persons wanting to be present are moved wholly by good-will. Many would go for curiosity, for excitement, for supposed social prestige. If Lady Lindsay had started picking and choosing on the motive basis, she might have compiled a better list, but the outcries and heart-burnings would have been worse than at present.

Though East made the unfortunate lead of the spade J, costing one trick, his side held the hand to exactly 3-No trump, getting three tricks in spades and the club A.

At the other table, after the 1-Heart by South, 2-Clubs by North, 2-Diamonds by South and 2-No trump by North, South saw fit to rebid his five-card suit at 3-Hearts. North, a sound partner, who would not make a three-card raise of what might be a four-card suit headed by the Q or J-10, now knew his partner had five hearts. So he raised to 4-Hearts.

There was no earthly way to beat this contract, at which only one trick each was lost in clubs, diamonds and spades, thus producing a score which defeated the 3-No trump by 20 points. In addition, there was the fact that the No trump game would have been beaten if East had not led the spade J and West put his Q on it.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

WHEN JESSICA fled from the breakfast room, Eleanor buttered her toast slowly. She did not eat it. Her eyes, fixed on the garden scene where humming birds whirled above the blues and lavenders, clustered in a patch of golden sunlight, were darkening.

She hadn't thought much of Jessica's telling Kate that Dennis was madly in love with her; she had been more concerned with her having said it than what was back of it.

Dennis had never told her that he loved her. They did not talk of love. It was enough for them to be together and to talk of every other thing in the world. Jessica had said: "Don't pretend, Mother!"

She was not pretending. Or was she? Had she not known and cherished the thought that their friendship had meant as much to Dennis as it did to her? Had she not evaded calling it anything but friendship? And did not she, so wise in the ways of emotions, know that no friendship of this kind was possible between a married woman and a man other than her husband?

"Resolve this," her mind spoke. But she could not. Dennis would be going away soon. Any day now. She had begun to tell herself for many days past that when he went she would miss him as she missed a friend. That was all.

She told it all to herself again. She said it aloud:

"Dennis is going away soon. It was nice to have known him. I must put him in a book some day." There, she had said it. It was easy to say.

Annie stood at her elbow. "Did you call, Mrs. Parrish?" Eleanor came back from a long way. "What? . . . Oh, no, Annie, I didn't call."

Annie went out and Eleanor pushed her plate away from her, and put her elbow on the table, her hands supporting her temples. What had it been that Jessica had wanted to tell her? She remembered now the change in Jessica's voice when she had said: "Mother—" There had been something desperate in it.

Eleanor got up from the table and went into the garden.

Phil was weeding the beet patch. She said: "Why don't you have the gardener do that, Phil? And what do we want beets for anyway?"

He answered: "Come on down, Nell, and help me. There's nothing like weeding beets to get the weeds out of your mind."

"I want to talk to you, Phil." She sat down on the grass at the edge of the patch.

"Fire away."

She put a blade of grass into her mouth and began to weed without being conscious of it.

"What's on your mind?"

She didn't quite know how to start. She couldn't very well tell him about the scene in the breakfast room without telling him more than she wanted to.

He said: "Hey, there, don't pull up the beets. I guess you'd better give it up. You were born to be a lily, Nell. You'd better stick to being handsomely arrayed. Some of the roses are ready for cutting."

She was glad of the excuse to get away. She must think of what she had to say to him. He knew her so well that she was afraid he would read her mind. She said: "All right, I'll cut the roses."

"What did you want to talk about?"

"Nothing important," she said.

"Why don't you have the gardener do that, Phil?"

brushing some soil from her plume skirt. "We can talk about it later when I don't have to share your attention with the beets."

"Better put a hat on, honey. The sun's hot this morning," he called after her.

"If only he wouldn't be so solicitous," she said to herself. "And so humble," she added.

Dennis made her feel that he was exalted, and that he took her up to a place beside him. That was one of the things that she loved about him. When she was with him, she felt exalted, as if she were on a mountain peak.

She had never felt that way with Phil, even in the early days. It was always she who led, and women did not like to lead. It had been increasingly difficult with Phil during these last years when she was nearing the highest pinnacle of success. There was a quality of gratefulness about Phil, a hesitancy and humbleness in his manner that irritated her.

She broke off her thoughts angrily. She was being unfair to herself to think that way. Her thoughts inferred that she had made him as he was.

The day stretched long, empty and irksome to her. She was not in a mood for work; Dennis was in New York for the day and she could not work when she was mentally unsettled.

Jessica had gone when she returned to the house, but her presence, her words and something strange in her manner remained in her mother's memory.

Once more she sought out Phil. "Phil, what's the matter with Jessica? Do you think she is working too hard?"

He said calmly: "Jessica is in love. Very much in love, I am afraid. Hasn't she talked to you about it?"

"No . . . not exactly. Do you mean with that Charles . . . Charles whatever-his-name-is?"

"His name is Charles Kendall, Nell. I think you ought to know about it. He is no boy to sit with in the moonlight and forget. If you'd noticed what's been going on all summer, you would have seen that he is almost always with Jessica. I don't like it, but I've felt it was your place to straighten out the matter."

"Why don't you like it, Phil? Is there anything the matter with him?"

"Only that he is nearly twice Jessica's age, that he has been previously married and seen much more of the world than a seventeen-year-old girl could."

"Oh! Maybe we'd better do something about it. Insist on Jessica's leaving the theater at once. Send her off some place."

"I wouldn't recommend that approach, Nell. Jessica is too high-spirited. She's very much like you. She has a mind of her own."

"Well, suggest something."

"I suggest that we dine en famille tonight—just the three of us, and talk it over. You'll find that she will be honest with us. That's the best way. You don't have an engagement, do you?"

"No . . . I'll tell cook."

Eleanor thought that Phil's suggestion was right, and she meant to follow it, but Dennis Pryor rang her up from New York around five o'clock and said: "Eleanor, will you come in town and meet me for dinner?"

She said: "I can't, Dennis. I'm playing the heavy mother role tonight."

"Could you play it another night? I've had a cable from my company. I'm returning to Brazil in a few days. I must talk to you tonight. And I would prefer to talk to you in New York."

Dennis was returning to Brazil "in a few days!"

She said: "I'll come in, Dennis. Will you meet my train? I'll arrive at seven-six."

She wrote a hasty little note for Phil to find when he got home from his golf.

Juniors-Seniors Enjoy Annual Class Banquet

Decorations For Affair Prove Elaborate

Gathering for the last major social affair of their high school year the members of the Senior class of Circleville high school were guests of the Juniors at the annual banquet and prom Friday in Memorial Hall auditorium. Senior class colors of blue and gold were used in the festive decorations of the hall, strands of crepe paper in these shades forming the false ceiling over the dance floor and the canopy under the balcony where the tables were set for the banquet. Bowls of mixed garden flowers centered the tables, candy novelties and program place cards in blue and gold marking each place.

A low white picket fence intertwined with flowering vines separated the space reserved for the tables from the dance floor. The front of the stage was banked with green with red poppies forming the word "Senior" as an inset.

To the right of the stage, a clever reproduction of a light house with a large flickering lantern on the top, and a Dutch Windmill in action at the left completed the unique decorative plan. The glow from the light house as it blinked on and off formed an ever-changing picture as the girls in their attractive Summer formal whirled and dipped in the figures of the modern dances after the banquet.

One hundred and seventy-five were served during the dinner hour by girls of the Freshman class of the high school. The food was prepared by mothers of members of the Junior class.

Miss Mary Lutz served as toastmistress presenting Paul Walters, president of the Junior class, who welcomed the Seniors, faculty, members of the board of education and other guests present. Frank Barnhill, Jr., president of the Seniors, accepted the greeting for the class.

Thomas M. Armstrong gave a toast to the Seniors, talking in behalf of the faculty. He briefly reviewed the achievements of the class and expressed regret that its association with the school was at an end.

Speaking for the board of education, Dr. C. D. Phillips discussed the class members in relation to others and discussed its debt to society. He gave much pertinent advice as to how the class could repay it.

Miss Grace Teegardin led the guests in the school song, "The Red and the Black" after which the grand march led by Miss Mary Jane Bowers and Paul Walters assisted by Miss Martha Goeller and Frank Barnhill opened the dance program arranged for the later evening hours.

The High Hatters, a Lancaster dance band of eight pieces, furnished a program of smooth sophisticated music for the dancing which continued until 12 o'clock. A girl vocalist with the band sang several solos during the evening. She also announced that three of the dancers were observing their birthday anniversaries at that time, the Misses Pat Bennett, Marjorie Fausnaugh and Don Jackson, taking bows.

Members of the invitation committee included William Bennett, chairman, Robert Brehrer, Miss Betty Young, Howard Orr and

Pachysandra Blight
Since Pachysandra, often called Japanese spurge, is used frequently for a ground cover it is especially desirable that its foliage be kept in a healthy condition for appearances sake.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, Pachysandra is subject to a blight which causes large, brown blotches to appear on the leaves and also causes cankers on the plant's stems. This fungus blight spreads rapidly during wet weather and if not checked will kill out large areas of the plants.

Effective control measures include digging out the diseased plants, or spraying with Bordeaux mixture until the disease is checked. Spray every ten days.

Mulching beds of Pachysandra with leaves over Winter is a serious mistake for the leaves hold moisture, which encourages fungus growth. A light covering of straw is far more healthful for the plants.

ENGLISH SOCIETY ON TOUR FRIDAY

Friday, May 19, the E. M. S. club of Circleville High took its annual educational tour. This year the group again visited the city of Cincinnati.

Leaving the school building at 8:00 in the morning the party arrived in Cincinnati at 10:15 a. m. The first stop was at Time Hill. Here the group was shown the various processes through which completely assembled watches must go. Among these processes are the rounding of a lens and gold plating.

From Time Hill the club went to Union Terminal where it spent the greater part of the lunch hour.

In the afternoon E. M. S. members were the guests of radio station WLW. A guide explained the various stages through which a broadcast must go, how special news is received, and how the new facsimile broadcasts are produced. As a climax to this, the group witnessed a broadcast of the dramatic serial, "The Mad Hatterfields."

Leaving the radio station the excursion took a short tour through the University of Cincinnati and spent the remainder of the afternoon in the Zoo.

Members of the club who went on the trip were Frank Barnhill, Helen Beck, Norma Jean Brown, Pollyanna Friedman, Rose Ann Griner, Robert Griner, Bonita Hulse, Lloyd Jones, Ruth Montelius, Mary K. Pile, Bernice Strawser, Sam Stubbs, Jennings Turner, and Paul Turner.

Mrs. Howard B. Moore, Mrs. Samuel S. Stubbs, and Samuel R. Johnson chaperoned the party.

EDITORIAL SHOOTING AT THE CUP

When a golfer takes his position along side the ball on the tee, the thought foremost in his mind is to get that ball into the cup on the green, a few hundred yards down the fairway, with the fewest number of strokes. He knows definitely what he wants to do. He may get in the rough, or some other hazard may make the game harder for him, but he is always shooting at the cup—striving for a definite goal.

How much better the game of life can be played when the player decides, early in the game, just what part he is going to play. The age, or time in life, when a boy or girl decides what his life's work should be, varies, depending upon the personal characteristics and circumstances governing each case. But, with few exceptions, this decision should have been reached by the time the student receives his high school diploma. Whether he plans to attend some college or immediately seek employment, he should have some definite goal and lend his efforts toward that end. This particularly applies to those entering universities.

In my opinion, there is too much lost motion in college. This is brought about by so many students entering college without a definite course in mind. In many cases, the first and even the second year in college will serve equally well as a foundation for many different courses, but, "drowning" often occurs by "changing horses in the middle of the stream." With a definite goal in mind, you will feel sure of no lost motion, and, since most college students' finances are limited, you will be able to get the most out of your time spent there.

It is the duty of the parents to work with their children in making this decision. The counselor service of your high school faculty and administrators is always available. Then, there are your business and professional friends who would be glad to talk with you regarding such problems.

So, again I say, whether it be college or immediate employment, let's find the cup and keep shooting at it.

Juniors-Seniors Enjoy Annual Class Banquet

Decorations For Affair Prove Elaborate

Gathering for the last major social affair of their high school day the members of the Senior class of Circleville high school were guests of the Juniors at the annual banquet and prom Friday in Memorial Hall auditorium. Senior class colors of blue and gold were used in the festive decorations of the hall, strands of crepe paper in these shades forming the false ceiling over the dance floor and the canopy under the balcony where the tables were set for the banquet. Bowls of mixed garden flowers centered the tables, candy novelties and program place cards in blue and gold marking each place. A low white picket fence intertwined with flowering vines separated the space reserved for the tables from the dance floor. The front of the stage was banked with green with red poppies forming the word "Senior" as an inset.

To the right of the stage, a clever reproduction of a light house with a large flickering lantern on the top, and a Dutch Windmill in action at the left completed the unique decorative plan. The glow from the light house as it blinked on and off formed an everchanging picture as the girls in their attractive Summer formal whirled and dipped in the figures of the modern dances after the banquet.

One hundred and seventy-five were served during the dinner hour by girls of the Freshman class of the high school. The food was prepared by mothers of members of the Junior class.

Miss Mary Lutz served as toastmistress presenting Paul Walters, president of the Junior class, who welcomed the Seniors, faculty, members of the board of education and other guests present. Frank Barnhill, Jr., president of the Seniors, accepted the greeting for the class.

Thomas M. Armstrong gave a toast to the Seniors, talking in behalf of the faculty. He briefly reviewed the achievements of the class and expressed regret that its association with the school was at an end.

Speaking for the board of education, Dr. C. D. Phillips discussed the class members in relation to others and discussed its debt to society. He gave much pertinent advice as to how the class could repay it.

Miss Grace Teegardin led the guests in the school song, "The Red and the Black" after which the grand march led by Miss Mary Jane Bowers and Paul Walters assisted by Miss Martha Goeller and Frank Barnhill opened the dance program arranged for the later evening hours.

The High Hatters, a Lancaster dance band of eight pieces, furnished a program of smooth sophisticated music for the dancing which continued until 12 o'clock. A girl vocalist with the band sang several solos during the evening. She also announced that three of the dancers were observing their birthday anniversaries at that time, the Misses Pat Bennett, Marjorie Fausnaugh and Don Jackson, taking bows.

Members of the invitation committee included William Bennett, chairman, Robert Brehmer, Miss Betty Young, Howard Orr and eran having served in the navy. His friends will be received from 4 until 7 o'clock at the informal affair.

Grange Memorial Service

About 50 members of Washington grange were present for the annual Memorial services of the organization Friday in Washington school auditorium. In the absence of Byron Bolender, worthy master, M. J. Valentine, overseer, was in the chair for the business and ritualistic hour.

The program was in two parts, the first devoted to the service for deceased members of the grange, three having died during the last year. A large floral broken wheel was the center of interest in the decorations for the affair.

S. L. Warner, chaplain, read the scripture lesson. Miss Nellie Kuhn read "Crossing the Bar" followed by an appropriate reading by Miss Ethyl May. "Abide With Me" was sung by the group, after which flowers were placed in concluding the Memorial service.

"Ask-it-Basket," a contest for three teams of grangers was included in the second part of the program. Miss Nellie Bolender headed the team including Miss Huldah Leist, Miss Ethel Brobst, Mrs. Fred Moeller and Mrs. M. J. Valentine. Miss Ethyl May had on her team Miss Edith Spanger, Miss Nellie Kuhn, Miss Mary Walters and Miss Margaret List. Howard Huston captained the group consisting of John Bolender, Loring Leist, Marvin Steeley and S. L. Warner. At the close of the contest the winners were Miss Brobst, Miss Leist and Mr. Warner.

Mrs. M. M. Bowman, worthy lecturer, announced that the program at the next meeting would be in honor of the charter members.

Miss Eleanor McDill. Tye Davis headed the food committee which consisted of the Misses Eleanor Brown, Sara Cook, Mary Stinson, Ruth Pickel, Mabel Noggle, Pat Mogan and Miss Mary Lutz. The class motto committee included Miss Bernice Strawser, Miss Martha Stonerock, James Shea and Melvin Thompson. The seating arrangements were in charge of Miss Marilyn Lutz, Sylvester Cramer, Miss Betty Cooper, Miss Bonita Hulse, David Eagleson and Miss Marjorie Kuhn.

The unusually effective decorations were arranged by Hulse, Hays, Jr., Miss Mary J. Bowers, Miss Regina Thornton, Miss Bernice Strawser, Harold Hill, David Hilyard, Tom Harden, and Jack Funk. Members of the music committee included Jack Clifton, Robert Wallace and Miss Sara Shafer. The program booklets, which also included space for reserving dances, were planned by William Lutz, William Heffner, Miss Mary Pickard, Miss Betty Lanman and Miss Margaret Goode.

Wiener Roast

Members of the graduating class of Washington township school and a few additional guests enjoyed a wiener and marshmallow roast Thursday entertained by Bernard Wolf at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floy Brobst, of Washington township.

Games of various kinds formed the entertainment for the affair. Those present were the Misses Alice Diltz, Hazel Matz, Esther Mace, Mary Smallwood, Harriett Hanley, Mary Olive Leist, Floyd Burchwell, John D. Leist, Norman Leist, George DeLaVergne, Woodie Clifton and Bernard Wolf.

Guests at Wedding

Mrs. Meinhardt M. Crites of W. Franklin street and her sister, Mrs. Kelly R. Hannan of Lancaster were in Columbus Saturday to attend the wedding of their cousin, Miss Thelma M. Simms, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earlin J. Simms, to Dr. James H. Hay of that city.

The ceremony was set for 4:30 p. m. in the Broad street Methodist church.

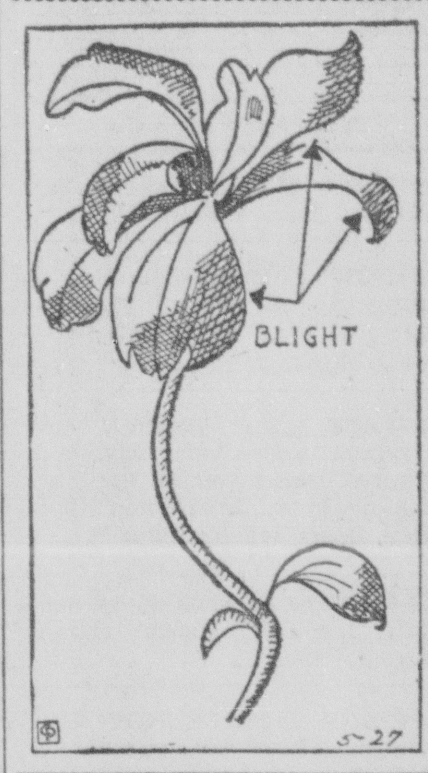

They were included in the guest list for the wedding reception at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, immediately following the service.

First-rate engines for racing airships cost around $50,000, and after 10 hours' running they are worn out.

Pachysandra Blight

Since Pachysandra, often called Japanese spurge, is used frequently for a ground cover it is especially desirable that its foliage be kept in a healthy condition for appearance sake.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, Pachysandra is subject to a blight which causes large, brown blotches to appear on the leaves and also causes cankers on the plant's stems. This fungus blight spreads rapidly during wet weather and if not checked will kill out large areas of the plants.

Effective control measures include digging out the diseased plants, or spraying with Bordeaux mixture until the disease is checked. Spray every ten days.

Mulching beds of Pachysandra with leaves over Winter is a serious mistake for the leaves hold moisture, which encourages fungus growth. A light covering of straw is far more healthful for the plants.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

big question mark of whether their chief in Washington might decide at the last moment to throw his hat in the ring.

To all of them, this would be highly embarrassing.

If Roosevelt should make this decision, he could get the nomination. Whether or not he could overcome the anti-third-term tradition and get re-elected remains to be seen; but as to the nomination there can be no doubt.

JIM FARLEY

Some Old Guard Democrats will walk out, possibly even Jack Garner—but there is one thing to put your money on: Jim Farley will not be among the bolters.

Privately, Jim is opposed to a third term, but if Roosevelt is in the picture, Jim will step out and give him the same loyal support as in the past. There is no question about that, for two reasons.

First, Jim is that kind of a guy. Second, because he believes that regardless of whether the President runs, the 1940 campaign will be waged on only one issue—Roosevelt. That is why Jim believes he, himself, would have a chance to win if nominated, notwithstanding the fact that he is Tammany and a Catholic.

Jim believes that the Democratic nominee, no matter who he is, will have to stand by the New Deal and that he will win or lose on that stand. In other words, Roosevelt will be the issue whether he runs himself or not. Furthermore, Jim is firmly convinced that the Democratic nomination won't be worth the paper it's written on unless the President takes off his coat and gives his all for the candidate.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Hard-working Senator Barkley, Democratic floor leader and Kentucky's favorite son candidate for 1940, is taking enough time off to have his portrait painted by Howard Chandler Christy. Barkley poses for the painting in a little office adjoining the Senate chamber... More than a score of Congressmen who voted to give each House member an additional clerk, at a cost of $625,000 a year to taxpayers, have either their wives or some other relatives on their congressional payroll. It is to be noted that not one of the leading Democratic economy clamorers raised his voice against the pork.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

James Stewart clipped Claudette Colbert on her charming chin five minutes after they had met, knocking her cold, but only for photographic purposes, the action taking place during their first scene together in "It's a Wonderful World," which comes to the Cliftona theatre Sunday for an engagement of two days.

The sequence is one of the comedy highlights of the rollicking mystery story. Miss Colbert plays Edwina Corday, a poetess, who joins forces with Guy Johnson, a young detective, Stewart's role, to solve a murder. When Miss Colbert's scatterbrained activities try him beyond endurance, Stewart biffs her.

Stewart, who never before had socked one of his film heroines, was a bit jittery about the whole business, but Miss Colbert survived without so much as a bruise.

With a cast of sterling funmakers as Guy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton, Frances Drake, Edgar Kennedy and Ernest Truex, "It's a Wonderful World" romps its unconventional course in fast-paced action through a series of fascinating backgrounds such as one of Manhattan's elaborate night clubs, a yacht, a theatre, auto camp, trains, motor boats, country scenes and the walls of Sing Sing.

AT THE GRAND

There's exciting news for the millions of Jane Withers fans whose enthusiasm for her pictures has put the mischievous miss right up among the first ten most popular screen stars. Jane's got her first "crush" in her newest film, "Boy Friend"! She goes romantic for the first time on the screen, but it's in that madcap Withers way.

It's just Jane's luck to find her first beau when she's busy smashing the gang that put her policeman brother on the spot in the 20th Century-Fox action-packed comedy. And you know Jane! You've got to be able to go places and do things if you're her "feller"!

As Jane says, "What good's a beau if he can't help you fight?" To which George Ernest, the "boy friend" of the picture coming Tuesday to the Grand theatre, replies, "What a girl friend for a boy friend to have! Give me a nice, quiet war!"

COUNTY'S ANNUAL BOY SCOUT FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN TO BEGIN JUNE 6

CIVIC LEADERS URGED TO HELP DRIVE FOR $600

Herman Hill To Be Chairman Of Effort; Scouters Have High Hope For Success

PROGRAM BEING EXTENDED

June 7 Court Of Honor On Program; Camping Season Also Discussed

Tuesday, June 6, will be the opening date for the annual sustaining membership appeal for Scouting in Pickaway county.

The date was announced Saturday following the round table meeting of Scouters Friday night at the Pickaway Country Club. Announcement was made also concerning the district Court of Honor ceremonial to be held Wednesday, June 7, at Gold Cliff, and a scouters meeting at the Scout reservation on June 24 and 25.

An early-bird breakfast for all volunteer workers who will assist in the campaign to secure $600 to assure the maintenance of Boy Scout work in the county will be held at 7:30 a. m. on the opening day of the drive. Herman Hill, chairman of the finance committee, will head the drive. Scouters, fathers of Scouts and others, including Rotarians, Kiwanians and members of the Chamber of Commerce will assist in enrolling sustaining members.

Optimism Expressed

The goal sought is the same as that successfully achieved in the last two years. Organization of several new scouting units lately, and increasing activity and service to boys, prompt local Scout officials to view the approaching campaign with optimism. James I. Smith, Jr., district chairman, announced.

William Radcliff, district Scout commissioner, and the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, chairman of the committee on Scout advancement, presented details concerning the quarterly recognition ceremony. Troop leaders have been asked to assemble their groups in order to form a caravan which will transport Scouts, parents and others to the outdoor Court of Honor program.

Summer camping at the Scout reservation was discussed and leaders indicated a large delegation of local Scouts would participate in the Summer camping program.

The camp, located near Delaware, is owned and operated by the area council. Many boys from Circleville have attended previous camp sessions.

Other Details To Follow

Further details concerning the meeting of scouters at the reservation will be announced in the near future, Mr. Radcliff said.

MRS. GEORGE L. CRITES ON OHIO HEALTH COMMITTEE

Mrs. George Crites, city chairman of the Circleville tuberculosis seal sale, was elected to serve on the board of directors of the Ohio Public Health association, Friday, at the annual meeting of the association in Columbus. Mrs. Crites will serve a three-year term.

Those from Circleville attending the annual meeting, in addition to Mrs. Crites, were Miss Clara Southward and Miss Elizabeth Dunlap. The annual meeting was held Thursday and Friday.

The Ohio Public Health association is a private organization established originally in 1901 as the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis to create interest in and to promote action against tuberculosis. It is a corporation, not for profit, having been incorporated under the laws of Ohio in 1911. It was reorganized in 1920 when it became the Ohio Public Health association. It is an affiliated organization of the National Tuberculosis association.

ODD FACTS

Fish Are So Soothing: To "help patients forget their distress" while waiting to enter his surgery, Mr. Sidney Teale, English dentist, is transforming his waiting-room into an aquarium.

Many women put fresh meat in water to wash it. This is not correct, as the water will draw out the juices of the meat, and they are lost when the water is thrown away. The better way to cleanse meat, fish or fowl is to take a clean, wet cloth wrung out of clean water, and wipe it thoroughly.

Theatres Present Varied Entertainment Program

THE RITZ Brothers offer sidesplitting laughs and "The Gorilla" blood-chilling thrills in the 20th Century-Fox picture of that title, at the Grand theatre Sunday and Monday. It's based on a famous Broadway fun-and-fright hit.

JAMES STEWART was handcuffed for 45 minutes on the set of "It's a Wonderful World," which starts Sunday at the Cliftona theatre, when he snapped the links, used in a scene, on his wrists. There was no key for the handcuffs and a locksmith had to be called before the actor could be released from his predicament. The handcuff scene, in which Stewart leaps from a moving train, pulling his guard along with him, provides one of the exciting moments in "It's a Wonderful World," a romantic comedy with a mystery touch. Claudette Colbert is starred in the new picture.

ELIMINATION OF NAVY MEN BEGIN LEVY ON PROFIT TASK OF RAISING GAINS SUPPORT 'SUB' FROM SEA

No Specific Proposals Made But Numerous Suggestions Offered By Treasurer

The Morgenthau program was evolved after months of study by treasury experts.

Abolition of the undistributed profits tax, which was cut to a maximum of two and one half percent last year, and substitution of a flat tax on corporations earning above $25,000 a year, appeared probable. Revaluation of capital stock each year for tax purposes, liberalized loss carry-over provisions, and other minor adjustments may be included in the tax bill.

The excise and nuisance taxes which expire July 1, and which the President has asked be renewed, include: tires and inner tubes, automobiles, cosmetics, radio receiving sets, mechanical refrigerators, firearms, shells, matches, electric energy, gasoline, lubricating oil, import taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper and 3-cent postage; transmission of oil by pipeline, telephone and telegraph messages, stamp taxes on transfer of bonds, conveyances, capital stock and other stamp taxes.

Unless congress changes present law, movie admission taxes would be virtually repealed on July 1. After that date only admissions of $3 or more would be taxed. The tax now applies to admissions of 41 cents or more.

JOHN W. WRIGHT WILL IN COURT; VALUE $17,201

The will of John W. Wright, of New Holland, was admitted to probate, Friday, by Judge Meeker Terwilliger, acting as Probate judge. Mr. Wright was a justice of peace in Perry township for many years. His estate is valued at $17,201, including personal property of $2,200 and real estate listed at $15,010.

His widow, Ettie O'Dell Wright, is bequeathed the home property in New Holland, during her lifetime, and given the household goods and personal property. At the death of Mrs. Wright the home property is to be sold and the proceeds given to Mr. Wright's living heirs.

The farm in Perry township is to be sold and the proceeds divided equally among the widow; four daughters, Mrs. Daisy Stinson, Atlanta; Mrs. Mabel Hancock, Williamsport; Mrs. Minnie Tarbill, Mt. Sterling; and Mrs. Lulu Kirkpatrick, New Holland; Mrs. Marie Cozier, a granddaughter, of Zanesville; Lawrence White, a grandson, of Carlisle, Ky; and George Wright, a grandson, of Oak Park, Ill.

Mrs. Cozier and Lawrence White receive the share of their deceased mother, Margaret Wright White. The will had named James E. Wright, of New Holland, a son, as a beneficiary. He is now deceased. A property in West Holland had been bequeathed to the son during his lifetime. At his death the will directed the property be sold and proceeds divided among the living children of John Wright. Letters testamentary were issued to Mrs. Ettie Wright.

DR. MAYO, FAMED PHYSICIAN, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

CHICAGO, May 27.—The body of Dr. Charles Horace Mayo was returned for burial today to the small Minnesota town of Rochester, which he helped build into one of the world's greatest medical centers.

The renowned physician and surgeon died late yesterday from pneumonia after an 8-day battle. He was 73.

Even an intense desire to live failed to mislead the younger of noted Mayo brothers in a characteristically swift and sure diagnosis of his own case and its probable outcome.

As soon as he was stricken while returning to Rochester from Arizona he knew the trouble and several days ago predicted the end, according to his son, Dr. Charles W. Mayo.

"But," the son added, "he was unafraid. He often said his life had been full. He has made people happy. I know he did not regret going."

All the resources of the Mayo clinic, where thousands have been saved, could do nothing for its co-founder.

Dr. Mayo rallied slightly Thursday after the administration of a new drug, perfected in the clinic's laboratories, and a blood transfusion from his son, but the change was only temporary.

COUNTY'S ANNUAL BOY SCOUT FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN TO BEGIN JUNE 6

CIVIC LEADERS URGED TO HELP DRIVE FOR $600

Herman Hill To Be Chairman Of Effort; Scouters Have High Hope For Success

PROGRAM BEING EXTENDED

June 7 Court Of Honor On Program; Camping Season Also Discussed

Tuesday, June 6, will be the opening date for the annual sustaining membership appeal for Scouting in Pickaway county.

The date was announced Saturday following the round table meeting of Scouters Friday night at the Pickaway Country Club. Announcement was made also concerning the district Court of Honor ceremonial to be held Wednesday, June 7, at Gold Cliff, and a scouters meeting at the Scout reservation on June 24 and 25.

An early-bird breakfast for all volunteer workers who will assist in the campaign to secure $600 to assure the maintenance of Boy Scout work in the county will be held at 7:30 a. m. on the opening day of the drive. Herman Hill, chairman of the finance committee, will head the drive. Scouters, fathers of Scouts and others, including Rotarians, Kiwanians and members of the Chamber of Commerce will assist in enrolling sustaining members.

Optimism Expressed
The goal sought is the same as that successfully achieved in the last two years. Organization of several new scouting units lately, and increasing activity and service to boys, prompt local Scout officials to view the approaching campaign with optimism. James I. Smith, Jr., district chairman, announced.

William Radcliff, district Scout commissioner, and the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, chairman of the committee on Scout advancement, presented details concerning the quarterly recognition ceremony. Troop leaders have been asked to assemble their groups in order to form a caravan which will transport Scouts, parents and others to the outdoor Court of Honor program.

Summer camping at the Scout reservation was discussed and leaders indicated a large delegation of local Scouts would participate in the Summer camping program. The camp, located near Delaware, is owned and operated by the area council. Many boys from Circleville have attended previous camp sessions.

Other Details To Follow
Further details concerning the meeting of scouters at the reservation will be announced in the near future, Mr. Radcliff said.

MRS. GEORGE L. CRITES ON OHIO HEALTH COMMITTEE

Mrs. George Crites, city chairman of the Circleville tuberculosis seal sale, was elected to serve on the board of directors of the Ohio Public Health association, Friday, at the annual meeting of the association in Columbus. Mrs. Crites will serve a three-year term.

Those from Circleville attending the annual meeting, in addition to Mrs. Crites, were Miss Clara Southward and Miss Elizabeth Dunlap. The annual meeting was held Thursday and Friday.

The Ohio Public Health association is a private organization established originally in 1901 as the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis to create interest in and to promote action against tuberculosis. It is a corporation, not for profit, having been incorporated under the laws of Ohio in 1911. It was reorganized in 1920 when it became the Ohio Public Health association. It is an affiliated organization of the National Tuberculosis association.

Many women put fresh meat in water to wash it. This is not correct, as the water will draw out the juices of the meat, and they are lost when the water is thrown away. The better way to cleanse meat, fish or fowl is to take a clean, wet cloth wrung out of clean water, and wipe it thoroughly.

Theatres Present Varied Entertainment Program

THE RITZ Brothers offer sidesplitting laughs and "The Gorilla" blood-chilling thrills in the 20th Century-Fox picture of that title, at the Grand theatre Sunday and Monday. It's based on a famous Broadway fun-and-fright hit.

JAMES STEWART was handcuffed for 45 minutes on the set of "It's a Wonderful World," which starts Sunday at the Cliftona theatre, when he snapped the links, used in a scene, on his wrists. There was no key for the handcuffs and a locksmith had to be called before the actor could be released from his predicament. The handcuff scene, in which Stewart leaps from a moving train, pulling his guard along with him, provides one of the exciting moments in "It's a Wonderful World," a romantic comedy with a mystery touch. Claudette Colbert is starred in the new picture.

ELIMINATION OF NAVY MEN BEGIN LEVY ON PROFIT TASK OF RAISING GAINS SUPPORT 'SUB' FROM SEA

lier in the session—will be postponed.

The Morgenthau program was evolved after months of study by treasury experts.

Abolition of the undistributed profits tax, which was cut to a maximum of two and one half percent last year, and substitution of a flat tax on corporations earning above $25,000 a year, appeared probable. Revaluation of capital stock each year for tax purposes, liberalized loss carry-over provisions, and other minor adjustments may be included in the tax bill.

The excise and nuisance taxes which expire July 1, and which the President has asked be renewed, include: tires and inner tubes, automobiles, cosmetics, radio receiving sets, mechanical refrigerators, firearms, shells, matches, electric engine, gasoline, lubricating oil, import taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper and 3-cent postage; transmission of oil by pipeline, telephone and telegraph messages, stamp taxes on transfer of bonds, conveyances, capital stock and other stamp taxes.

Unless congress changes present law, movie admission taxes would be virtually repealed on July 1. After that date only admissions of $3 or more would be taxed. The tax now applies to admissions of 41 cents or more.

Approval of this plan was obtained from Washington navy department officials by Commander Allen R. McCann and A. I. McKee, who flew to Washington yesterday.

Today some authorities optimistically predicted that if favorable weather continues, the submarine may be floated within two or three days. Other estimates, however, said the task might take several weeks or more.
